

Boris U. Stambuk holds a B.S. by Universidade de São Paulo (1985), M.S. in Microbiology and Immunology by Universidade Federal de São Paulo (1990), and Ph.D. in Biochemistry by Universidade de São Paulo (1995). Associate professor in Biochemistry at Universidade Federal de Santa Catarina, he was a Senior Research Associate at the National Renewable Energy Laboratory (2002), and visiting professor at the Department of Genetics, Stanford University (2006). He works at the graduate program in Biochemistry and in Biotechnology of Universidade Federal de Santa Catarina, and Biotechnology from Universidade de São Paulo, analyzing the microbiology, biochemistry and molecular biology of industrial and medically important yeasts. He has published over 40 peer-reviewed manuscripts in international journals.