

Manuela da Silva

Fiocruz, Brasil

Graduated in Biological Science at the São Paulo State University Júlio de Mesquita Filho (UNESP) (1991), with specialization degree in Mycology at the International Mycological Institute-CABI, England (1993), master degree in Food Engineering (Microbiology) at the State University of Campinas (UNICAMP) (1996), PhD in Food Science (Microbiology) at UNICAMP (2002) and part of it at the Food and Drug Administration – National Center for Toxicological Research (FDA-NCTR) in USA (2000 and 2001). In 2002 joined Fundação Oswaldo Cruz (FIOCRUZ) and currently works for the Vice-President of Research and Reference Laboratories coordinating the reference laboratories and biological collections from FIOCRUZ. She is also permanent professor of the Postgraduate Program in Health Surveillance of the National Institute for Health Quality Control (INCQS/ FIOCRUZ) and collaborates with the Brazilian National Institute of Industrial Property (INPI) for structuring the Brazilian Center for Biological Material (CBMB). She has experience in Microbiology, focusing on Mycology, acting mainly on the following subjects: fungal identification, biodegradation and biodeterioration.